WASHINGTON, July 23, 1868.

THE NEGRO BILL.

The bill to arm the negroes of the South is now the feature of the proceedings in Congress. It has been greatly accelerated by the recently admitted carpet-baggers who demand its passage as the only hope of carrying the State in question for the Republican ticket. The debate to-day on adjournment brought this negro bill prominently before the House. Davis and Washburne opposed it strenuously on pretended moral and radical grounds. But they represent a large class of Republicans who are against it both as a matter of principle and expediency, regarding it as desperate, revolutionary, inhuman, reckless, unnecessary and impolitic. The carpet-baggers on the other hand, who are trying to establish a sort of balance of power, and to rule the councils of the majority are making many exceptions, this at the head of them all, which they consider essential to their own existence and the existence of the Republican organization down South. The fate of the bill is by no means certain. Great opposition to it exists in outside circles and in the press. A clear majority in the House is for it at least, but several members have been known to vote for it, and are secretly working for its defeat. The debate of this morning was very lively and attracted a large crowd. Indeed the measure excites more general interest than any other of the session, except impeachment.

A CATCH.

Last night a number of carpet-baggers was held, which is represented as having been very riotous. Stokes of Tennessee made a speech, in which he said that if Congress would give him the arms he would go home and raise a regiment of colored cavalry, which would sweep the South of Ku-Klux Klan and exterminate every vestige of opposition to the radical party. Mullins, the Caliban of Congress, made a harangue to the same purpose. Fresh articles of impeachment against the President were introduced, and carried almost unanimously. These articles will be laid before the regular session, which meets Saturday night. All the carpet-baggers are for impeachment, which they declare to be a necessary expedient for the bill arming the negroes.

ADJOURNMENT.

A good many Republicans favor adjournment next Monday, because they think it will relieve the party of embarrassment. In this event the negro militia bill and other pet carpet-bag schemes will go over. The radical pressure against this course is very great.

A GOOD IDEA.

It is proposed by some of the carpet-baggers to raise a regiment of mounted militia, all composed of black men, riding black horses, wearing a black uniform, and carrying a black flag, to be commanded by Brisbin, of Kentucky, and to go upon a roving campaign against the Ku-Klux Klan.

AN OLD CLOUD.

Old Thad. Stevens' late demonstration on the finances creates a regular howl in orthodox Republican circles, and he would be read out of the party at once if he did not mend his ways. He is preparing an answer, but he is preparing an answer.

THE TAX BILL.

The President has at last signed the tax bill.

THE CONFERENCE COMMITTEE.

The conference committee has agreed on a report on the bill to arm the negroes, and the House yielding its opinions to the wishes of the Senate.

OF COURSE.

Jeffries, Register of the Treasury, has been nominated Commissioner of Internal Revenue by the President. It is considered as a peace arrangement between Mr. McCulloch and Mr. Johnson, who have been friends since the New York Convention. Jeffries is a friend of McCulloch. The Democrats are a good deal disgusted.
